BREED THEATER.
The Oysterman's Gold, Sensational Sea Picture.

One of the most interesting of the genre pictures at the Breed theater this week is entitled "The Oysterman's Gold" and shows clearly the strange but interesting occupation of an oyster dredger. Many scenes of the different stages of the securing of the oyster which are shown in a most vivid way. The fleet and many of the different parts of the boats, showing the interesting construction and the process of oyster dredging to facilitate in plying the trade. A tragic story is woven about the selling of the cargo and some of the most colorful scenes are imaginable are seen in this great picture. Equally beautiful but quite different is the exquisite pastoral drama entitled "The Oysterman's Gold." This picture is teeming with some of the most fascinating animal scenes and the ever beautiful and homely barnyard scenes with the various domestic animals are a delight to the eye, while the whole scene is refreshing in its novel simplicity. Many other well as comedy, making a varied and excellent bill.
Master Harry Noonan, the popular little vocalist, one of the brightest of the juvenile singers in the professional field and is in constant demand everywhere, and while here has sung some of the newest and best songs. In addition in this week's songs are Nobody's Little Girl and If You Are Nobody's Sweetheart.

LINCOLN PARK.
Weather Holds Up Show—Rocket Night Thursday.

Lincoln park is in hard luck this week, weatherwise. The rustic theater has not been able to put on a performance, owing to the rain.
If today proves fair the bill at the theater will be started and it should prove satisfactory to everyone. Five shows will be given, each with a short scene for strolling and dancing, followed by the rockets at 10:05. The display should last from fifteen to twenty minutes. The 11:05 car will be the busy car that night. It is the last one for the city and gets to the square at 11:25.

BRUTAL ROBBERY OF MERCHANT
Masked Men Gag Burlew and Wife and Then Set Fire to House.

Four masked men early Monday entered the home of Charles Burlew, a storekeeper at West Pittston, near Wilkesbarre, Pa., and going to the room occupied by the merchant and his wife demanded of the former the money he received from his sales last Saturday. He refused and was knocked unconscious. The intruders then bound and gagged Burlew and his wife and ransacked the room. After securing $350 from under a mattress, the men set fire to the house and fled. Burlew managed to work himself loose and, after liberating his wife, carried her and their one year old baby to the roof to escape the flames. Upon the arrival of the firemen ladders were run to the roof and Burlew and his wife and child were brought to the ground. Just before noon four traps were arrested in a railway yard under suspicion. They asserted their innocence but were locked up.

Horse and Automobile Collide.
Kenneth E. Mosher of Keene met with a serious accident Sunday near Marlboro, while he was taking a party to Chebacco in his automobile. As he was nearing the village a horse belonging to Mr. Wiswall, which was running loose in the road, jumped in front of the machine. None of the occupants was thrown out, but Mr. Mosher was thrown about in the machine so that he received internal injuries and he was rendered unconscious. When he was revived on his head. The machine was somewhat damaged, as the top was torn off and the front seat was displaced. The horse received a gash in its breast that required three stitches to close. Mr. Mosher was taken to his home on Union street, where he regained consciousness late in the afternoon. He was reported to be resting comfortably Monday, although he is not yet out of danger.

Otto Elenszucht of Prague has written a play for her with which she says she is charmed and hopes to appear in it in Germany and Austria and then to have it translated into English so that she may perform it in America.

Gambling Must Be Abolished.
The police objections to the granting of the licenses for the National league and American league baseball parks in Boston were raised when it was agreed by representatives of both leagues that they would do all in their power to assist the police in abolishing gambling. The American league club worked under their new license Wednesday and all through the game the police and club employees were busy escorting men known to be or suspected of being gamblers to the gates. Police Captain Hanley said that this will be the last year so far as he is concerned and if the gambling is not prevented he will not sanction the granting of the licenses again.

POETRY.
TO LIST OR TO LEAN.
There are two kinds of people on earth Just two kinds of people, no more, I say. Not the saint and the sinner, for 'tis well understood The good are half bad and the bad are half good. Not the rich and the poor, for to count you must first know the state of his conscience and health. Not the humble and proud, for in life a little span Who puts on vain airs is not counted as a man's wealth. Not the happy and sad, for the swift bring us more his laughter, and each man has his tears. Not the two kinds of people on earth that I mean The people who lift and the people who share. Where'er you go you will find the world's masses Are always divided in just these two classes; And, oddly enough, you find, too, I find, There is only one lifter to twenty who lean. In what class are you? Are you easing the load Of overworked litters who toll down the road? Or are you a leaser, who lets others Your portion of labor and worry and care? —Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

CLOSE TO FALLTIME.
Getting close to falltime—summer is a night; But summer we're all so sorry to say to be "Goodbye!"

For summer was the sweetest—in the shadows of the maples and the singing of the vireos and the sighing of the pines.

"Farewell" she goes a-saying, from the mountains to mountains, and the summer is over, once more, a transient constitution.

My brother broke his leg yesterday. "Farewell" he says, presuming so. He has nobody to spite. —Kansas City Journal.

Sleighing—The doctor says there's something the matter with my head. "Farewell" he says, presuming so. He has nobody to spite. —Boston Transcript.

Bronson—I noticed your wife sitting by the window sewing this morning. I thought you told me yesterday she was ill. Woodson—So she was, but today she's on the mend.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Peck—I admire a woman who can argue. Henpeck—Are you a married man? Peck—No, sir. Single. Henpeck—I thought so.—St. Louis Times

You must not interrupt me when I am in a story, because you can't tell the only time I can interrupt my mamma.—Yonkers Statesman.

Tommy—Honest, ma, I haven't been up flying. Mrs. Knicker—I know you have been in a story, because you can't tell the only time I can interrupt my mamma.—Yonkers Statesman.

"They say Harold C.ington has brain fever." "Impossible. Could as easily be a student in the law, because his hair is wet.—New York Sun.

Deemster—Whenever I have to borrow I try to get it from a peasant. Peasant—Why? Deemster—A peasant never expects to get it back. Life.

Subaltern—What on earth are ye fellows doing? There hasn't been a bit signaled for the last half hour. Private—This is general, because we have the marker, sir.—Punch.

"When you feel a hankerlin' for great authority, son," said Uncle Eben, "do a little preliminary practice as a hankerlin' for a hankerlin' whether you really enjoys it."—Washington Star.

There, little lambs, don't cry! We have sheared your wool, we know; And we've let you go. And the fleeces will grow. And you will come to wool, and be a New York Wool.

Mary Backstop—Did he tell you I with him would be one grand, awe song? Maudie Sidestreet—No; he said he would be one grand, awe song, but he never expects to get it back. Life.

Stubb—What's the trouble, of chaps? You look angry enough to fight. Penn—Oh, I'm smiling. It's for an hour or so, but I'm waiting in the back, and then I told him a joke and he laughed so much I buttons all flew open. What's the use of telling a woman a joke, anyhow?—Chicago News.
